

Plans Ahead on:

Nuttall

#	What To Do	Date Done	#	What To Do	Date Done
	Search ABUM	7-1-90
	Nuttall, David W., and Family, 869	"
	Nuttall, Elmira A. Meeks, 970	"
	Nuttall, George, 918-919	"
	Nuttall, Hannah Ford, 970	"
	Nuttall, John H., and Family, 969	"
	Nuttall, Joseph B., and Family, 970	"
	Nuttall, Juliet Wall, 974	"
	Nuttall, Laura N. Gardner, 969	"
	Nuttall, Lily Fraser, 969	"
	Nuttall, Louise J. Kerby, 975	"
	Nuttall, Margaret C. Greer, 972	"
	Nuttall, Martha Fenn, 972	"
	Nuttall, Mary A. Jones, 970	"
	Nuttall, Richard J., 970	"
	Nuttall, Rosamond Watson, 972	"
	Nuttall, William A., and Family, 916, 972	"
	Nuttall, William E., and Family, 911, 912, 915, 972	"
	Nuttall, William G., and Family, 974	"
	Nuttall, William H., 28	"
2	Search PPMU	7-2-90
	NUTTALL, LEONARD JOHN 337	"
	NUTTALL, LEONARD JOHN, JR. 337	"
	NUTTALL, THOMAS C. 337	"
	NUTTALL, WILLIAM 337	"
3	Search LDS Biogr. Enqyc.	7-3-90
	Nuttall, Leonard John, Vol. 1:355*.
	Nuttall, Wm. E., Vol. 4:661.
4	Search Heber Tel Directory	7-3-90
5	Search Lion's Directory	7-3-90

Question:
Which Geo
Nuttall
Ran the Creamery in Wallsburg who was his wife

JAMES HENRY ADAMS AND LAURA ALICE NUTTALL

James Henry Adams was born December 11, 1869, at Ogden, Utah, a son of James Adams and Ellen Cunningham. He was married in 1891 to Laura Alice Nuttall, who was born 29 June 1873, at Wallburg, Utah, a daughter of William Ephraim Nuttall and Rosamond Watson. Laura Alice died April 29, 1928, and James Henry died October 16, 1940. Both are buried at Ogden.

Their children are: William, James Robert, Leonard Vernon, Ida Loretta, Wilford E., Claude LeRoy, Joseph Farrar, Richard Alvin, Thomas LaViel, Rosamond Ellen, Yvonna Anna.

DAVID WATSON NUTTALL AND LILLIE FRASER

David Watson Nuttall was born May 14, 1869, at Provo, Utah, son of William Ephraim and Rosamond Watson Nuttall. He died April 12, 1956, at Provo, Utah. He married Lillie Elizabeth Fraser, who was born in London, England, of Scotch ancestry, and came with her beautiful and kindly mother, Annie McDonald Fraser, to make her home in Wallsburg on November 20, 1895. Her father was Thomas Fraser. She was born December 18, 1872, in London, and died December 18, 1956, in Provo.

David grew up under the influence of fine people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardener, keeping it clean for all the many functions. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work for fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing, for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas Leland.

969

DAVID WATSON NUTTALL AND LILLIE FRASER

969

fine people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardener, keeping it clean for all the many functions. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work for fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing, for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas Leland.

fine people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

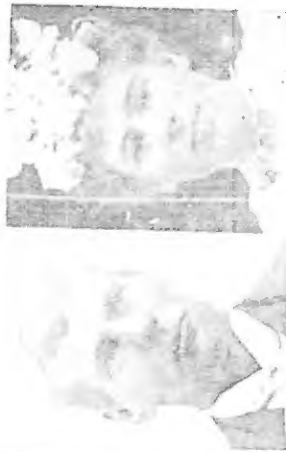

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardener, keeping it clean for all the many functions. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work for fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing, for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas Leland.

969

DAVID WATSON NUTTALL AND LILLIE FRASER

David Watson Nuttall was born May 14, 1869, at Provo, Utah, son of William Ephraim and Rosamond Watson Nuttall. He died April 12, 1956, at Provo, Utah. He married Lillie Elizabeth Fraser, who was born in London, England, of Scotch ancestry, and came with her beautiful and kind mother, Annie McDonald Fraser, to make her home in Wallshurg on November 20, 1895. Her father was Thomas Fraser. She was born December 18, 1872, in London, and died December 15, 1956, in Provo.

David grew up under the influence of five people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

969

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardner. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work in fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas LeGrand.

969

DAVID WATSON NUTTALL
AND LILLIE FRASER

David Watson Nuttall was born May 14, 1869, at Provo, Utah, son of William Ephraim and Rosamond Watson Nuttall. He died April 12, 1956, at Provo, Utah. He married Lillie Elizabeth Fraser, who was born in London, England, of Scotch ancestry, and came with her beautiful and kindly mother, Annie McDonald Fraser, to make her home in Wallsburg on November 20, 1895. Her father was Thomas Fraser. She was born December 18, 1872, in London, and died December 18, 1956, in Provo.

David grew up under the influence of

969

fine people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardener, keeping it clean for all the many functions. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work for fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing, for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas Leland.

969

DAVID WATSON NUTTALL
AND LILLIE FRASER

David Watson Nuttall was born May 14, 1869, at Provo, Utah, son of William Ephraim and Rosamond Watson Nuttall. He died April 12, 1956, at Provo, Utah. He married Lillie Elizabeth Fraser, who was born in London, England, of Scotch ancestry, and came with her beautiful and kindly mother, Annie McDonald Fraser, to make her home in Wallsburg on November 20, 1895. Her father was Thomas Fraser. She was born December 18, 1872, in London, and died December 18, 1956, in Provo.

David grew up under the influence of fine people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardener, keeping it clean for all the many functions. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work for fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing, for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas Leland.

969

DAVID WATSON NUTTALL AND LILLIE FRASER

David Watson Nuttall was born May 14, 1869, at Provo, Utah, son of William Ephraim and Rosamond Watson Nuttall. He died April 12, 1956, at Provo, Utah. He married Lillie Elizabeth Fraser, who was born in London, England, of Scotch ancestry, and came with her beautiful and kindly mother, Annie McDonald Fraser, to make her home in Wallburg on November 20, 1895. Her father was Thomas Fraser. She was born December 18, 1872, in London, and died December 18, 1956, in Provo.

David grew up under the influence of

969

fine people, attended the little pioneer school where he learned to enjoy reading, writing, and arithmetic. Since always young folks had to help with all the work of pioneering a new place, too, David did his share taking care of the farm and sawmill for many years.

After David and Lillie Fraser were married they lived in a tiny one-room cabin, but soon moved into two rooms. Lillie was an excellent cook and a very fastidious housekeeper. They were both very hospitable and friendly people. He was a hard worker and during the winters hauled wood to keep the home fires burning. They both were active in the Church.

David was custodian of the Church for 17 years, under Bishop George Gardener, keeping it clean for all the many functions. He was also custodian at the school many years. After retiring and moving to Provo, he still couldn't be idle, so spent much time picking fruit and doing other types of work. Sometimes, if the farmer did not feel that he could pay wages, David would work for fruit or vegetables they needed, or often for nothing, for he just had to be busy at some useful task.

They had two sons: Floyd and Thomas Leland.